Back to the Farm.

At the present time much is being said in favor of the farmer and farm life, especially of the great advantages the farmer enjoys socially and independently compared with city folk. While every thoughtful person knows that the farmer has and always did have the best, healthiest and happiest life of all occupations, the object now is to make the people in the over-crowded cities see and realize the fact, and particularly to make the farmers' children realize it and to keep them on the farm instead of crowding in to the towns and cities as they have been doing of recent years. The object in view is not only a good one but a noble one and means everything to the progress of this fair Dominion. As an illustration of the methods employed in this good work we quote from a letter written by a young country lassie:

"I feel quite indignant towards those who in the least degree speak slightingly of farm life, yet I pity them, and console myself with the assurance that they know practically nothing of the superior advantages we country girls have. I often wonder why 'work' stands as a barrier or a dark object in any one's views of our life. I can truly say that work is a pleasure to me, or I at last make it one. We who can spend our lives hand in hand with nature thoroughly appreciate the various lessons so dimly presented in books. We see things as they are—not remodelled by imagination. Our knowledge of nature is not artificial, but founded on a true basis. We see, hear and know. Who can enjoy a poet's song to a fuller extent than we? We know what it means to walk on a velvety carpet of soft green grass, with the dear blue sky above us, while the sun seems to open before our eyes numerous flowers of wondrous beauty, and all about nature's choirs sing their praises. But farm life is not all beauty and pleasure. It has its practical side, of course, which can be better presented by a farmer's wife than by his daughter."

"Back to the Farm," is the slogan that should now be sounded from one end of Canada to the other. 'Stand by the Farm,' is the truest note of our country's progress. True manhood, pure womanhood, can find no better, more useful, profitable, honorable or independent field for the development of all the noblest qualities of life and character than that which a bountiful Providence freely offers in the varied, progressive and useful round of farm life in Canada. The farmer is nature's nobleman in this country. His faithful, diligent helpmeet is nature's noblewoman. The sons and daughters of the soil, who live on and by the soil, are, with them, its true aristocracy. Together they form the solid foundation on which the whole social fabric is upborne. They are the noble men and women, whose jewels are the sweat drops of honest, laborous, beneficent toil, who wear the choicest crown nature can bestow—Independence; and their chief glory is the cultivation of the most precious possession life can yield—Character.

Here in the Columbia valley we see men past middle-life turning to the farm, having spent their youth in search of wealth in other occupations and only having learned by years of experience and hard work the lessons which they were drilled in during childhood.

Our little trip south last week thoroughly convinced us of one thing in particular and that is that for mountain scenery the Columbia valley by far excells the wider Kootenay valley—in fact, we have never yet seen its equal, although we have seen a goodly portion of British Columbia's most famous scenery. For five years we had not been out of view of this beautiful valley and while the change of scenery was appreciated and welcomed, yet it only served to intensify our love and admiration of the great mountains here, with their hidden treasure vaults. The one regret is that more of the world do not know of the grandeur of this valley and come to see it. Even when the railway is constructed the best way to see this country will be by a trip up the river by steamer, and, therefore, there is no reason why this resource should not be thoroughly cultivated now.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

We'll begin with a box and the plural is boxes.

But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oases;

Then one fowl is goose, but two are called geese;

Yet the plural of mouse should never be mouses;

You may find a lone mouse, or a whole fleet of mice;

But the plural of house is houses, not hices;

If the plural of man is always called men,

Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?

The cow in the plural may be cows or kine,

But a cow if repeated is never called kine,

And the plural of vow is vows, not vices,

And if I speak of a foot and you show me your feet,

And I give you a boot, would a pair be called beet?

If one is a tooth, the whole set are teeth

Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?

If the singular's this and the plural is these,

Should the plural of knee be nicknamed knees?

Then one may be that and three would be those,

Yet that in a plural would never be hose,

And the plural of cat is cats, not coes,

We speak of a brother and also of brethren,

But though we may say mother we never say methers;

Then masculine pronouns are he, his and him,

But imagine the feminine, she, she and shim,

So the English, I think, you all will agree,

Is the most wonderful language you ever did see.

Late observations have shown that the rate of increase of temperature in boiling into the earth is not as great as has been assumed. A rise of 1 degree C. for every 16 feet has been accepted for Europe and America, but James Stirling, an Australian engineer, from measurements at the deep mines of all parts of the world, shows that the average temperature increase is 1 degree C. for every 154.5 feet in depth. The extremes are 1 degree C. for every 90 feet at Saarbrücken and 1 degree C. for every 402.6 feet at the Calumet and Hecla mine. The rate diminishes somewhat with increasing depth, but even the most favorable conditions make mining impracticable at the depth of a mile.

The change in the electric conductivity of metals under the influence of radium has been investigated in France by H. Babat. Increased resistance was found in iron, steel, copper, brass, tin, and platinum. It is inferred that the beta rays of radium are changed into heat on striking the metals, and this heat has the usual effect in lessening conductivity.

For 25 years the nature of magnetism, a problem scarcely less bewildering than life itself, has been a subject of research by Joannes Zacharias, the German engineer. He has experimented patiently and in many ways with magnetized and unmagnetized materials, with ordinary and special magnets, and has concluded that this singular force is not a stable state of matter, but like light and heat is a motion of molecules. This he holds to be true in the case of permanent magnets as well as electro-magnets. Some of his results are quite magical as the rotating of a suspended steel ball enclosed in a glass tube by turning a copper ball on the other side of a partition, or directing metallic balls by the least of a lighted cigar or even of a finger or causing horseshoe magnets to retain non-magnetic dials like selenium or magnetium.

The novel theory that gravitation is closely allied to natural electrical phenomena, if not actually associated therewith, is deduced by Capt. Hugh Stewart of New Zealand from certain meteorological observations. The continuous electrical discharges between sun and earth, visible as aurora, may act as bands to keep movable objects from being whirled tangentially into space, and storms are ascribed to ruptures or collisions of these streams of electrified ether, such as may be produced by the passage of planets.

The Mining Exhibit

The following extract from a letter addressed to The Outcrop from the Press Agent of the Dominion Exhibition to be held at New Westminster full explains itself:

Dear Sir,—In reply to yours of recent date re mining exhibit from your district, Manager Keary advises me that the collection of the exhibit is supposed to be looked after by the M. L. A. of your constituency. Further, that exhibits from every source or district will be acceptable and that the R. A. & I. society will stand the freight expenses on all such sent from anywhere in British Columbia. It is understood, of course, that the display must remain in Mineral Hall after the exhibition is over to be used by the R. A. & I. society at any other time.

Sincerely yours,
R. J. BURDE, Press Agent.

As it is now known that our M. L. A. is "engaged" it will only be fair to suggest that the "boys" help him by gathering up all the fine ore specimens possible and sending them to the Exhibition.

Favors Bureau of Mines.

The Associated Boards of Trade is in receipt of a communication from Frank Oliver, the new minister of the interior, containing information of great importance to the Kootenays. It is to the effect that there is a strong probability that the subject of the organization of a bureau of mines will be taken up by the Dominion Government at an early date.

In his communication on the subject Mr. Oliver goes on to say that he is more than willing to have the mining and geological survey branches of the work of the department of the interior enlarged and set apart from the interior department and in conclusion expresses the belief that such an arrangement would be of advantage to the country if the work were properly handled.

The inference to be drawn from the communication is that there is little doubt that the wishes of the mining men of the country will be acceded to by the government.

OUR ORE SHIPMENTS

BASE BALL

The best game of base ball ever played in Wilmer was played on Tuesday evening, when the School Boys Club were matched against the Ladies Club, the prize for the winners being a sack full of candy. The Boys went to bat first and scored eight and the Ladies then ran up a score of four, but when the Boys got to bat again they were there to stay and when they had run their score up to 32 only one had been put out and the Ladies gave up the struggle, the score standing 4 to 32 in favor of the Boys. For genuine fun that convulsed the spectators with laughter this was a star match and we regret that a full report cannot be given this issue as our entire staff went to celebrate the 24th. Here is the way the proud little winners lived up their men:

James Hall, pitcher.
Leslie Allen, catcher.
Charles Evans, 1st base.
Alfred Larabee, 2nd base.
Gideon Larabee, 3rd base.
Ritter Path, infielder.
The main feature of the Ladies play were: Miss Rook's run, Miss Dunne's catches and throws, Miss Ford's left hand plays, Mrs. Power's high catches to 5-4, Miss McNall's home strike, Mrs. Evans' quick curves and Mrs. Starke's coaching.

A letter received by Chas. Palmer from H. L. Amner, states that he intends to return to Arizona, but that F. Cuthill is now on his way back to this valley. Harry is prospecting for gold and may be strike in his big bunches like bananas in the wash of his numerous friends here.
